

Adilisa Sort -Name

7th October 2016

Adilisa Sort

I ♥

SPORT

Ding... Dong... Ding it was eleven o'clock and it was time to go into the factory. There was this girl that was so excited, she was one of the five lucky children that had found a golden ticket as well as me! She wasn't much of a chocolate eater by the looks of things but she was ready to give it a go. She ran, speed-walked, jogged and skipped everywhere and never stopped! I was hypnotized by her, she must of had lots of energy she even talked so fast nobody could understand a single thing she said not even her parents!

She wore a belly top that had a few of her favourite hobbies on. Also she had black leggings on with white stripes and black trainers with huge, white laces, that she almost stepped on whenever she ran! Huge, I mean huge! I could probably fit my hips through them laces, it was insane! Her tummy though didn't look like a young woman's tummy but a gully grown man's stomach! She was so fit it was like she had ran even faster than a herd of horses! I thought to myself of how much running she would of had to do to get soooooo thin! Therefore her arms and legs were so muscular they looked like an olympian that ran 10,000m and crossed the line first! Her hair was like golden corn that swayed in the breeze. It covered most of her body and around the top of her head she wore a headband with millions of little red flowers on it. Her face had a bit of makeup on, some red lipstick that you could see your reflection in, a bit of pink blusher and eye makeup such as mascara, eyeliner and eyeshadow. The actual colour of her eyes were blue and